

ABSTRACT

A method, system and program product to manage total inventory. Existing inventory, optimum inventory, excess inventory and inventory consumption are calculated according to different sets of data regarding whether one is considering a policy inventory and/ or a manufacturing limitation. Results of the calculations with different sets of data are compared to determine an impact of the policy inventory and an inventory trapped in manufacturing. This invention has application in the microelectronics industry as well as other industries.